If your state office is not yet a member, then JOIN

The Social Law Library is the backbone law library for Massachusetts state government. Its comprehensive collection and research databases span substantially all the subjects in the Massachusetts General Laws, and more.

Robert L. Quinan, Jr., *Managing Attorney
Administrative Law Division, Government Bureau,
Office of Attorney General Martha Coakley*

“The Social Law Library has long served me and my colleagues in the Administrative Law Division as we represent state agencies and officials in court. I strongly encourage state agencies to take advantage of the Library’s tremendous resources.”

Gail Sullivan, Associate Counsel, Division of Banks, with Social Law Library Reference Librarian, Brian Harkins.

“The Library’s hugely talented staff stands ready to find anything—and I do mean anything—a lawyer needs. No subject is ever too obscure”

If your agency is a member, then sign up for free TRAINING

Trainings take place either at the Library or at the offices of specific state entities. Sessions can be scheduled for individuals or select groups of professional staff. Each training is tailored to the needs of the particular agency, highlighting the on-line and paper-based resources that fall within the agency’s subject-area jurisdiction. The hands-on trainings review the scores of sophisticated legal-research databases available to state government, the broad scope of reference and research services available, as well as how the Library staff can help identify and deliver the most current and comprehensive materials to address state government’s legal-research needs.
